

Letter of Recommendation

August 18, 2024

To Whom It May Concern,

I am pleased to write this letter of recommendation for Etienne Guillet. During our time working together, Etienne has proven himself to be a dedicated and hands-on learner, particularly excelling in situations where he can directly apply his knowledge. His adaptability with code is commendable, and he consistently demonstrates a solid understanding of design and technical concepts.

Recently, Etienne quickly adapted to React, working on two significant applications. He effectively switched between an ERP system and an E-commerce front-end, showcasing not only his technical proficiency but also his remarkable flexibility. His ability to seamlessly transition between these projects was greatly appreciated and contributed significantly to their success.

Etienne's keen attention to detail allows him to identify areas that could benefit from improvement, and he does not hesitate to point out potential flaws. This trait is particularly valuable in environments that require constant vigilance and refinement.

Etienne is a high performer, bringing energy and focus to his work. He collaborates effectively with his peers in his department and has readily stepped into different roles to contribute to the team's success.

In summary, Etienne is a capable individual with a strong technical foundation that can be built on and he excels in roles where his skills and interests are fully engaged.
